Object: CALIFORNIA PROPOSITION 65 STATEMENT

California's Proposition 65 law requires one who knowingly and intentionally exposes individuals to certain amounts of listed chemicals known to the state to cause cancer or reproductive toxicity give "clear and reasonable" warning to such individuals. Additional information is available at www.P65Warnings.ca.gov.

To our current, actual knowledge, STMicroelectronics' products do not, under normal product use, expose persons to such chemicals and are, thus, compliant with California's Proposition 65 law. Therefore, the notices indicated in the California Proposition 65 law do not apply to STMicroelectronics.

STMicroelectronics products may contain listed chemicals that could result in exposure in non-normal use situations such as destructive decomposition. Appropriate safeguards should be taken in such situations.

STMicroelectronics has attempted to provide accurate information in this Statement. STMicroelectronics relied, in part, on information from third parties in making this Statement. Supplier information is often protected as confidential information or as trade secrets, and some relevant information may not have been provided by such third parties.
